MARYLAND SHERIFF TO ENFORCE LAWS

Blue Laws to Be Enforced and They Will Cut Out All Sunday Gayeties.

Washington folk who are won't to seek Sunday recreation at the exclusive Chevy Chase Club, of the big resorts at Glen Echo and Chevy Chase Lake, have felt the heavy hand of the Maryland blue law. This grim statute provides that nothing shall be done in Maryland on Sunday, except what is absolutely necessary. Eating is about the most exciting amusement open to the public, and if one desires to wear a shoe abline to church, he must get it saturday night. Sheriff Clifford L. Howard, of Montgomery County, has announced that as long as he is in office, the law will be rigorously enforced. He has so warned every establishment in the county, separately, from the smallest corner pop stand to the fashionable club of which President and Mise Taft are members. The famous turkey trot, the newly discovered "horse" trot, and trotting in all its other delectable forms will disappear off the face of Montgomery County, Even such ancient and respectable amusements as waitzing and two-stepping are under the ban. No longer will the agile high ball roll, or the cocktail wave triumphant in the face of protesting piety. Sunday will stretch Sahara-like before the would-he reveler.
